VS SUB® Invisible: Out of sight. Effortlessly to hand.

Vauth-Sagel launches a new comfort swing-up fitting for kitchen machines

Pordenone, 20 October 2026 – A clear worktop or a kitchen machine within easy reach? With VS SUB® Invisible, you can have both. Vauth-Sagel's new comfort swing-up fitting stores kitchen machines out of sight in the base unit and, with power assistance, brings them straight onto the worktop.

Kitchen machines have become indispensable in many households. For millions of people, they are a daily companion when cooking. But they are heavy and take up space – which is why they usually stand permanently on the worktop. That costs work surface and visual calm. Especially in modern, clearly planned kitchens, this creates a conflict between ready access and tidiness. VS SUB® Invisible resolves it.

Onto the worktop – not in front of it

The decisive difference lies in the position of the appliance. Conventional swing-up fittings do lift kitchen appliances to working height, but in doing so they bring them in front of the worktop – the appliance stands in the room, in front of the cabinet. VS SUB® Invisible, by contrast, swings the kitchen machine directly onto the worktop. In use, the system protrudes only 42 millimetres into the room. Walkways and movement areas remain clear. This also makes the fitting attractive for compact kitchen layouts.

Ready for use in three steps

Operation takes three steps: first, the cabinet is opened and the pull-out drawn fully forward. The system can then be guided upwards by the integrated handles with power assistance. Finally, the kitchen machine is swung onto the worktop. The cabinet front can then be closed far enough not to get in the way while working. A gas spring takes the load and supports the entire movement. No bending. No heavy lifting. No effort. When the appliance is not needed, it disappears just as easily back into the base unit – leaving the worktop clear.

Not a centimetre wasted

Development focused on one goal: making the best possible use of the space in the cabinet. That is why as much space as possible around the kitchen machine is made usable for storage. An integrated niche shelf holds accessories, kitchen utensils or cookbooks – right where they are needed. Below the fitting, the drawer remains fully usable, for example for pots, baking tins or other accessories. So no storage space is lost.

Thought through down to the last detail

Anti-slip pads on the underside ensure a secure stand even at full power and with strong vibrations, while protecting the worktop from scratches. Rubber buffers on the front prevent the fitting from scratching the furniture front. A safety latch secures the system in the cabinet – for example during initial use, cleaning or maintenance – and also serves as a transport lock.

Tailored for TM6 and TM7

VS SUB® Invisible is designed to fit the dimensions of the Thermomix® TM6 and TM7 and is also suitable for kitchen machines with comparable dimensions and a weight of approx. 6.5 to 10 kilograms. The system is available for cabinet widths of 450, 500 and 600 millimetres and requires a niche height of at least 528 millimetres and an installation depth of at least 515 millimetres.

‘Comfort doesn't begin with cooking – it begins with reaching for the appliance. VS SUB® Invisible makes the kitchen machine invisible when it isn't needed – and effortlessly available when it is. That is exactly what we mean by Comfort makes the difference,’ says Claus Sagel, Managing Partner of Vauth-Sagel.
